I. PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

H.R. 5469, the “Pursuing Equity in Mental Health Act”, introduced on December 17, 2019 by Representative Bonnie Watson Coleman (D-NJ), would authorize Federal funding to address mental health disparities among underserved populations, including communities of color. H.R. 5469 includes provisions that would: create a grant program targeted at high-poverty communities for culturally and linguistically appropriate mental health services; support research into disparities in mental health; reauthorize the Minority Fellowship Program to support more students of color entering the mental health workforce; and study the impact of smartphones and social media on adolescents.

II. BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR THE LEGISLATION

According to the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), the prevalence of adults with any mental illness and serious mental illness is increasing.<sup>1</sup> In 2008, more than 39 million adults indicated they had a mental illness. By comparison, in 2019, more than 51 million adults indicated they had a mental illness. Additionally, suicide is still the tenth leading cause of death in the United States.<sup>2</sup> Although suicide rates vary by age group, it is the second leading cause of death in people between the ages of 10 and 34.<sup>3</sup> When the data is disaggregated, research found a significant increase in the suicide rate among Black children and a significant decrease for White children.<sup>4</sup>

As a rising junior at Newtown High School in Covington, Georgia, Arriana Gross said she saw firsthand the need to support youth mental health. In her testimony before the Committee, Arriana said, “[i]n our school, a year doesn’t go by without a student dying by suicide.”<sup>5</sup> Further, she stated that, “I am concerned that youth suicide has become so common that my school community and our Nation is stuck in a pattern of mourning and accepting these deaths as something that is normal, instead of seeing them as preventable and tragic.”<sup>6</sup>

Mental health disparities exist for racial and ethnic minority populations. National Institute of Mental Health Director Joshua Gordon, M.D., Ph.D., wrote about those disparities, highlighting that inequalities “lead to worse mental health outcomes in underserved and minority communities.”<sup>7</sup> He also noted the increase in suicide rates amongst Black youth and the need to address the trend.<sup>8</sup>

In addition to addressing trends in suicide and mental health outcomes, Arthur C. Evans, Ph.D., Chief Executive Officer of the American Psychological Association, shared with the Committee the importance of addressing “the disparities in the representations of scholars from diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds across psychology, as well as other fields of research, if we intend to make a dramatic impact in responding to the current and emerging mental health crisis before the country.”<sup>9</sup>

H.R. 5469 would help to address these issues by investing resources into better understanding racial and ethnic minority mental health disparities, improving outreach and support for racial and ethnic minorities, and supporting more students of color entering into mental health fields.
